Orient of Taiwan, on which the sun never sets

Newsletter #6, July 2013

A word from the Venerable Master

Dear brethren,

Happy summer!

Our Craft is in darkness in June and July, but there are work and challenges awaiting us when the summer is over. While we are still overjoyed by the success of the Spring conferral, the Fall conferral in Taipei is coming sooner than we thought! It will be held on Friday, 27th and Saturday, 28th of September, 2013 in Taipei. In order to achieve an equally successful event, we need as many helping hands as possible. Please look around brethren in your blue lodge and help to recruit candidates. The ritual teams need your participation, too. Please contact Brother Secretary Sir Knight Claude if you can help. Our Craft can only be advanced through the joint effort of all.

Looking forward to greeting many of you again in Taipei!

Fraternally yours,
Dennis Liao, 32°KCCH
Venerable Master

Appointment

Due to health reasons, Ill. Tommy Weng has to resign from his position as Deputy of the Supreme Council in the Orient of Taiwan and China. His service and leadership for the years are highly appreciated. We sincerely hope his health will improve so that we may see him more often in our monthly meetings.

We have now the pleasure to announce the appointment of Ill. Norman Pin as a Deputy of the Supreme Council effective June 10, 2013. (See the appointment letter at end of this newsletter).

We congratulate him and look forward to his guidance and leadership in the many years to come.

The double headed Eagle

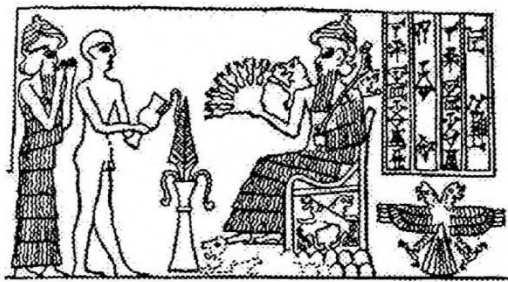

The eagle has carried since the remote antiquity a strong symbolism. Eagle, same as the lion, king of the beast, has been considered as the king of the birds, and accordingly carries a symbolism of power, and, flying high in the sky, a symbolism of height, security, and liberty. Represented with its wings displayed, it also symbolizes divine protection.

For these reasons it has been taken by the Roman Empire as emblem of power and protection. It was the only standard at the head of every legion. According to the legend, this choice was due to the fact that Romulus, the founder of Rome, first saw an eagle, when he was competing (in a sort of modern bird-watching exercise) with his brother Remus for who should be the founder of the new town.

The eagle is a solar symbol (like the pelican of the Rose-Croix). It may be because eagle is known as the only creature able to face the sun. In the Knight Rose Croix degree of his Moral and Dogma, Albert Pike wrote: "The Eagle was the living Symbol of the Egyptian God Mendes or Menthra, whom Sesostri-Ramses made one with Amun-Re, the God of Thebes and Upper Egypt, and the representative of the Sun, the word RE meaning Sun or King". It is a symbol of power and domination.

The double-headed eagle, contrarily to some monsters, is not a fabulous animal, but only the result of a combination of two eagles, looking in opposite directions. It appeared as such as the emblem of the Carolingian Empire with one eagle looking West towards Byzantium the other East towards Rome.

In fact, the eagle and even the double-headed eagle can be traced much earlier, in the old powerful Sumerian empire (the present Irak) as an emblem, in the city of Lagash, almost 2,000 years before the construction of king Solomon's Temple. Eagle was represented either simply, or double-headed, or with a lion's head.

The eagle was called the storm bird Imdugud, and was the symbol of the god of vegetation, Dumuzi, or Tammuz, or Abi, son of the mother earth, and lover of Ishtar or Astarte, to the glory of which King Solomon later erected a temple in Jerusalem. It must be also noted that some authors considers Tammuz as the father of Hiram Abiff.

The double headed appeared in Freemasonry with the development of high grades in France circa 1760 with the Order of the Royal Secret, the immediate predecessor of the Scottish Rite.

Dues.

The collection of 2014 dues is starting now, and shall be completed before December 31st, 2013. The Dues cards will be sent accordingly.

As a reminder, yearly dues are 2,000 NT$ for local brothers, and 50 US$ for overseas brothers.
Life membership is 10 times the yearly membership.

It is unfortunate to note that, in spite of several reminders, the 2013 dues have not been totally recovered yet.

The online payment remains a very convenient way to settle your dues (in US$), so less excuse to be late.
